I. Course Description and Objective

This course aims to survey recent key research agendas in the field of comparative and international political economy, with a specific focus on state, labor, and capital. It analyzes a set of political and market institutions, the interactions among the state, capital, and labor, and the linkage between global challenges and national political economy. The first section of the class will cover the institutional foundations of capitalism and democracy. The second part will analyze the varying role of state, capital and labor (mostly in advanced industrialized countries) in explaining economic performance, inequality, redistribution, and political dynamics. The third part will assess new challenges for global and national political economy, such as de-industrialization, immigration, and global investment. The last part will examine the effects of technological innovation and pandemic on the political economy and debates on new risks and new forms of social protection, and also analyze several issues on the global supply chains.

II. Prerequisites and Course Format

There are no prerequisites for this course, although some previous coursework in political science, international relations, and/or economics is helpful. The format of this course will be based on a combination of lecture and seminar, but with a heavy focus on the latter. Thus each student is expected to complete all the required reading each week and to contribute to the class discussion. On average, students can expect 120-130 pages of reading per class. “Cold calls” may sometimes be used.

Restrictions: No undergraduate students/undergraduate exchange students for this course.

III. Textbooks and Reading Assignments

There are no required textbooks for this course. The instructor will post the course reading on the course eTL. Please check the course eTL periodically.

IV. Grading Policy and Evaluation

- 1) Attendance and class participation: 20%
- 2) Class discussion leading: 10%
- 3) Weekly discussion question posting: 20%
- 4) Final Research Paper: 50%

A. Course Requirements

(1) Attendance and class participation: 20%

Attendance at all classes is mandatory. Two latenesses (showing up more than 5 minutes late) or early departures (without any prior notice to the instructor) will be counted as one absence. Three absences (without any valid excuse) will lead to a failure of the course. During the zoom lecture, students should turn on their cameras unless there are any compelling reasons and/or prior excuses for not to do so. Students active class participation is strongly encouraged and expected. Not only quantity, but also quality of participation will be critically evaluated.

(2) Class discussion leading: 10%

Each student (or a group of students, depending on the course enrollment) is assigned for leading a class discussion at least once during the semester. Each discussion leader is expected to present the core arguments of the reading in a very concise manner, to provide critical assessments and evaluations on the reading (e.g., strengths and weaknesses of the reading materials), and to raise theoretical and/or empirical questions in order to stimulate active class debates and discussions. The presentation should not be a mere summary of the reading assignments. Students are expected to send power point slides for the presentation to the instructor as well as teaching assistant by Monday morning or early afternoon, but no later than Monday 2:00 pm. No show-up for the week responsible for leading a class discussion will result in a zero point for this assignment.

(3) Weekly discussion question posting: 24% (2% per each week, 12 weeks)

Beginning week 2, students are required to submit a one page long weekly discussion question to the course eTL by Monday 9:30 am (24 hours before the class). The first half of the page should be composed of a very concise summary of each reading assignment (one or two sentences per each reading) and the second half of the page should present a discussion question (or questions) and/or short critiques based on the reading. No longer than one page (in single-spaced, approximately 300-350 word counts).

Please submit a weekly discussion question with the format of MS word file, NOT PDF file. Teaching assistant will collect student weekly discussion questions, and circulate them to the class before each lecture. Any late submission will not be accepted, except for medical or family emergencies.

(4) Final research paper: 46% (Due at 9:00 am on Monday, June 19)

Students are required to write a final research paper (14-15 pages, double-spaced, 12 font size, 1 inch margin) with a full bibliography (which is not going to be included in the page count). Since it is a writing assignment, both the contents of the research paper and the quality of the writing itself will be critically evaluated. Keep all the formats of the paper.

NOTE: The instructor will submit all writing assignments to turnitin.com in order to check for a possible sign of plagiarism.

(4-1) Contents and Format:

Final research papers should include theoretically and/or empirically interesting questions, the literature review section, rigorous tests of the hypothesis and arguments, and relevant academic references. Think it as a much shorter version of a master's thesis or Ph.D. dissertation.

Students can choose any research paper topic related to state, capital, and/or labor in global and national political economy, but with prior approval by the instructor.

While students may write a final research paper on the topic that has already been included in the course syllabus, they should present a new analytical approach and/or new empirical evidence, as opposed to simply summarizing a given week's reading on the topic. If students are not sure about their research paper topics, please consult the instructor in advance.

Extra reading materials and research beyond the course syllabus are required. While students may utilize online sources and/or journalistic coverage (e.g., newspaper articles and magazines) as references, the primary references should be academic materials (e.g., books, scholarly journals, government publications, and etc.). No citation from Wikipedia for this course!

(4-2) Research proposal: 5% (Due at 9:00 am on Friday, April 28)

Students are required to submit a 1-2 page long (double-spaced, 12 font size, 1 inch margin) research proposal that presents clear research questions, preliminary arguments, preliminary empirical evidence to support the key claims, and a few references related to the research topic. Keep the length of the proposal.

Unless students have a very compelling reason to do so, they CANNOT change research paper topics after submitting the proposal to the instructor. The instructor WILL NOT read any additional version of the research proposal after initial submission, either. Thus, please be careful when choosing a research topic and more importantly, begin to conduct research early on. Don't wait until the day before the deadline.

Students should upload an electronic copy of the proposal to the course eTL by 9:00 am on Friday, April 28. Please submit paper proposals with the format of MS word file or PDF file. No other format will be accepted.

(4-3) Research paper presentation: 6% (Tuesday, June 6 & June 13)

In weeks 14 and 15, student presentations (15-18 minutes for each) will be scheduled.

Students are expected to make constructive comments on others' presentations.

(4-4) Final Research Paper: 35% (Due at 9:00 am on Monday, June 19)

Students are required to submit a final research paper (14-15 pages, double spaced, 12 point font, 1 inch margin) by 9:00 am on Monday, June 19. Students should upload an electronic copy of the research paper to the course eTL.

Please keep the length of the paper and make sure that a paper has a title and each page is numbered. Use a standard bibliographic style (e.g., Chicago, APA, or MLA) to list all of the works cited in the paper.

Grades for late papers will be downgraded by "one full letter grade" per day late (e.g., A+ to B+).

IMPORTANT! To avoid plagiarism, students are expected to provide proper citations in final research papers for all quotations, paraphrases, and ideas taken from any source other than students' original thoughts. No block quotations unless they are essential!!!

B. Make-up and Lateness Policies

Except documented family or medical emergencies, there will be no make-up exams or assignment extension provided in this course. Routine doctor's appointment (e.g., flu or cold) does not qualify as medical emergencies.

C. Office Hours Policy

Students should contact teaching assistant in advance (2-3 business days preferably) to schedule a meeting during the instructor's office hours (Wednesday 2:00-4:00 pm). If students cannot make it during the regular office hours because of other class and/or work schedule (not because of student convenience), they have to email both the instructor and teaching assistant to consult additional office hours.

D. Laptop and Cell Phone Policy

Students can use their own laptops for note taking in class, however web browsing, on-line chatting, and/or course-unrelated activities WILL NOT be allowed. No cell phone use (including phone call, texting message, and/or phone applications) will be permitted during the class.

E. Academic Honesty

Any plagiarism or academic dishonesty will be severely punished. It will result in a failing grade and an official report to the Graduate School of International Studies. If students cite from other people's books, articles, or written/verbal materials, they should provide proper citations in writing materials for all quotations, paraphrases, and ideas taken from any source other than their own original thoughts. Regarding academic misconduct, please refer to the university's guideline on the principle of research ethics.

F. Accommodation Policy

Any student in this course who has a disability that may prevent him or her from fully demonstrating his or her abilities should contact the instructor personally as soon as possible to discuss accommodations necessary to ensure full participation and facilitate students’ educational opportunities.
