I. Course Description

The primary purpose of this course is to offer an overview of the field of international relations. It is designed to introduce basic theories and contemporary issues and problems in international relations. The first half of the course will examine major theoretical approaches and their critiques in the field of international relations, such as realism, liberalism, and constructivism. The second half of the course will discuss several contemporary issues and problems in international relations. Topics include; security dilemma and war; international cooperation; international trade; international financial and monetary relations; poverty and development; foreign aid; transnational and transgovernmental actors; and gender and international relations.

II. Prerequisites and Background

The course materials are designed for graduate students with some previous coursework in political science, international relations, and/or economics, although there are no prerequisites for the course.

IMPORTANT NOTE: This course is only for full-time GSIS students. No exchange students can enroll this class.

III. Course Format

The format of this course will be based on a combination of lecture and seminar. The first part of the course will be mostly lectured by the instructor and the second part will be based on the format of lectures, seminars, and student presentations. In order to facilitate engaging classroom atmosphere, students are required to read the assigned materials in advance. "Cold calls" may sometimes be used.

IMPORTANT NOTE: Because of the outbreak of the COVID-19, all lectures will be conducted via zoom.

IV. Textbooks and Reading Assignments

There are no required textbooks for this course. The instructor will post the assigned readings on the course eTL. Please check the course eTL.

For those who do not have any prior coursework in international relations, please check the following basic IR textbooks. You can purchase them from amazon or other bookstores. The instructor will not provide any copy materials on these textbooks.

- Robert J. Art and Robert Jervis, eds., International Politics: Enduring Concepts and Contemporary Issues, 12th ed. (New York: Pearson Longman, 2014).
- John Baylis and Steve Smith, The Globalization of World Politics, 6th ed. (Oxford University Press, 2014).
- Phil Williams, Donald M. Goldstein, and Jay M. Shafritz, eds., Classic Readings and Contemporary Debates in International Relations, 3rd ed. (Belmont: Wadsworth, 2005).

V. Grading Policy and Evaluation

- 1) Attendance and class participation: 10%
- 2) Writing assignments: 22%
- 3) Group presentation: 20%
- 4) Final exam: 48%

A. Course Requirements

(1) Attendance and class participation: 10%

Attendance at all classes is mandatory. Students' active class participation is strongly encouraged and expected. Not only quantity, but also quality of participation will be critically evaluated. Meanwhile, the instructor will not allow any dominance of class debates and discussions by few students.

Two latenesses (showing up more than 5 minutes late) or departures (without any prior notice to the instructor and/or TA) will be counted as one absence. Three absences (without valid excuse) will lead to a failure of the course.

Students should turn on video during the zoom session. In cases of technical problems and/or personal issues, students should contact the instructor and TA in advance (or as soon as possible) in order to get an approval of video-off option.

(2) Weekly response paper: 22% (11 papers in total, 22% per each)

Beginning week 3, students are required to submit a one page long weekly response paper to the course eTL 24 hours before the class (i.e., by Tuesday 9:00am). No longer than one page (in single-spaced, Times New Roman, 12 point fonts, approximately 250-300 words). Keep the page limit.

The response paper should be based on the assigned reading of the given week, NOT the assigned reading of the prior week (i.e., week 3 response paper should be based on the assigned reading of week 3, NOT week 2).

The first few sentences of the paper should be composed of a very concise summary of each reading assignment (one or two sentences per each reading). Then, students should write down their thoughts, comments, critique, and/or questions based on the reading. Both quantity and quality of the summary, comments, critique and/or discussion questions will be evaluated by the instructor. The grade for this assignment will be pass or fail.

Please submit a weekly response paper with the format of MS word file, NOT PDF file. TA will collect students' weekly response papers, and circulate them to the class before each lecture. Any late submission will not be accepted, except for medical or family emergencies.

NOTE: The instructor will submit all writing assignments to turnitin.com in order to check for a possible sign of plagiarism.

(3) Group presentation: 20%

All students are required to participate in one of the group presentations during the second half of the semester (from week 7). Each team is expected to choose specific policy cases or historical/contemporary international affairs, which would fit well with the thematic topic of the given week, and to analyze the policy cases or international affairs in order to support or criticize the reading discussed in class. Every team member should make a contribution to the group presentation. No free riders will be allowed.

The instructor will “randomly” assign students to each presentation team. Each group should prepare for ppt presentation slides and upload their presentation files to the course eTL 24 hours in advance (i.e., Tuesday 9:00am). No show-up for the week responsible for group presentation will result in a zero point for this assignment.

Each group presentation will be also evaluated by other classmates, and students' feedback will be collected and handed over to the group for references.

(4) Final exam: 48%

There will be an in-class final exam on December 8th (Wednesday). The final will consist of several essay questions, and it will cover all lecture and reading materials during the semester (from week 2 to week 14).

B. Make-up and Lateness Policies

Except “documented” family or medical emergencies, there will be no make-up exams or assignment extension provided in this course. Routine doctor's appointment (e.g., flu or cold) does not qualify as medical emergencies. If students need to take a make-up exam for family or medical emergencies, it is students' responsibility to contact the instructor and schedule a make-up exam within a week from the originally designated exam or assignment due.

C. Laptop and Cell Phone Policy

Students can use their own laptops for note taking in class, yet web browsing, on-line chatting, and/or other course-unrelated activities will NOT be allowed. No cell phone use (including phone call, texting message, and/or phone applications) will be permitted during the class. Any violations will directly affect attendance and participation grades.

D. Academic Honesty

Any plagiarism or academic dishonesty will be severely punished. It will result in a failing grade and an official report to the Graduate School of International Studies. If students cite from other people's books, articles, or written/verbal materials, they should provide proper citations in writing materials for all quotations, paraphrases, and ideas taken from any source other than their own original thoughts. Regarding academic misconduct, please refer to the university's guideline on the principle of research ethics.

E. Accommodation Policy

Any student in this course who has a disability that may prevent him or her from fully demonstrating his or her abilities should contact the instructor personally as soon as possible to discuss accommodations necessary to ensure full participation and facilitate students' educational opportunities.
