Title	International Law	Lecturer	Prof. Hyeyoung Lee
Course Keywords	Public International Law, Treaties, Customary International Law, States and Statehood, Sovereignty, Jurisdiction, Immunities, United Nations, International Court of Justice, International Criminal Court, International Human Rights Law, International Humanitarian Law, International Criminal Law
*1. Goals	The goal of this course is to enhance students' understanding of the structure and process of the international legal system, as well as the basic concepts, fundamental doctrines, substantive rules, operational mechanisms, and evolving practices of international law. The course will specifically address the sources and subjects of international law, how international disputes are resolved, under what conditions states can be held responsible, how international law is enforced, what the substances of international law are, and domestic courts and their relationship with international law. Students will also learn how to identify a wide range of contemporary international problems and examine their legal aspects, both of which are necessary skills for experts in the field of international cooperation.
